This is a very striking package. With all information on the green bottle embossed onto the glass and no label as such. With a very slow fermentation for 57 days, it is definitely a premium beer. The beer pours quite a dark amber colour with a thick, fluffy head that is just off white and really persists. On the nose this is immediately powerful and rich, with dark caramel-like malt aroma and a great depth of oily hops and meaty, earthy notes. In the mouth it is full-textured, but has such immediate bit and crisp, clean beautifully refined hop oil and chicory flavours that it is clean and refreshing. There is a touch of sweetness in here, and plenty of complex malt notes, in a very stylish and enjoyable beer.
